Conflicting Thoughts

school this week and will step forth into the world ready to carve out fame and fortune.

That they have been well prepared in mind and body and in the culture that goes with education, there is no doubt. As usual the patrons of Grayling schools may feel proud of its graduation class, which is as follows:

Hazel Cassidy, Edythe Shreve, Lucille McPhee, Lillian Mortenson, Vera Matson, Bess Smith and Percy Failing. The class motto is "Over the top," class colors old rose and silver; class flower, pink rose.

Commencement week began with baccalaureate, held at the school auditorium Sunday evening, June 9, preached by Rev. J. J. Riess of St. Mary's church. Rev. Riess spoke from the theme "Education" and left many words which if heeded will be of much value to the members of the class of 1919 and others who heard him. Rev. C. E. Doty gave the invocation and also a short scripture reading. J. Fred Alexander added much to the evening by rendering the hymn "Oh Jesus thou art standing." A group of members of the choir of Michelson Memorial church assisted by Mrs. Marius Hanson of St. Mary's church nicely sang many pretty hymns. They were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. W. E. Smith. The evening was closed with benediction by Rev. Riess.

Wednesday night was commencement. At 5:00 o'clock p. m. the members of the Junior class tendered the seniors a fine reception and banquet. This was a very elegant affair and enjoyed by the young people and their guests, the members of the school faculty, the school board and their wives and a few other invited friends.

The menu for the dinner consisted of meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, salad, rolls, pickles, jelly, ice cream, cake and coffee.

When the banquet was over there

Clark's orchestra furnished several very pleasing selections and were liberally applauded.

Rev. Doty gave the invocation after which Hazel Cassidy gave the valedictory address, her subject being "President Wilson's service to the world." She gave a most splendid eulogy of President Wilson and of the work he has done in the interest of democracy for the whole world. Her essay was splendid and a credit to the teachers of the Grayling schools as well as to herself.

Ex-Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris of Big Rapids was the speaker of the evening and Prof. Otterbein, in presenting him to the audience told of the high appreciation he had for the Ferris institute and particularly of the chapple exercises addresses of Prof. Ferris, saying that these alone more than repaid him for the expense of attending the institute.

Prof. Ferris is in a class by himself on the platform. An educator of a lifetime he naturally is deeply concerned in educational and psychological matters.

He opened his remarks by complimenting the people of Grayling on their fine new school building. Addressing the class he assured the members that he was not there to lecture them but instead would try to say things for the benefit of the older ones.

He based his theme on three classes of questions as follows: 1—questions for the purpose of conversation; 2—questions for curiosity; and 3—questions for information.

The speaker told many things that were amusing and also hammered in some remarks that would cause his auditors to do some serious thinking. He advised everybody to look at their own blue print and take an inventory of their mental assets.

He placed special emphasis upon the necessity of having the best teachers obtainable in the primary and lower grades, for at this time the foundation for life's education and training was laid, and it was in these early years of a child's life that their future years of success or failure determined upon the kind of teaching that was given them. Prof. Ferris would have schools open 52 weeks in the year and night school six nights each week so that all the people might have the opportunity of study just as long as they were able to learn.

Graduates Receive Diplomas.
It was a small but fine appearing class that arose to accept from Prof. Otterbein, on behalf of the Board of education, the diplomas that they have earned by completing the courses of study laid down for them by the Grayling schools. Appropriate remarks were made and the members admonished to "Go over the top," in accordance with their class motto, and do the things they want to do, but "do it square."

The meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Doty and the band playing the Star Spangled Banner. Tonight Class Will Present Graduation Play.

Tonight, Thursday, is graduation. The class, assisted by two boys of the Junior class, will present the play, "Fascinating Fanny Brown."

EAST MICHIGAN PIKE TRIP STARTS JULY 6.

The East Michigan pike trip, which for the past five years has been an annual feature in the good roads boosting proposition, will leave Detroit, for Mackinaw and Sault Ste. Marie on July 6, stopping at Saginaw, Tawas Beach, Alpena, Mackinaw City and the Soo one night each on the way up and at Cheboygan, Grayling and Saginaw on the return trip.

Stops will also be made at the various towns enroute at which speakers will give the reasons why every community should be interested in good roads. Business men at the cities where over-night stops are to be made are preparing to entertain the tourists in a fitting manner.

The prospects are that this tour will be the biggest and most enjoyable of any so far held. Already 30 automobiles have been entered and about 150 men have signed their intention of making the trip. It has also been proposed to invite the ladies to accompany them this time, and if this is done the number on the tour will be nearly doubled.

Among the features this year will be one for those who want to enjoy real out-of-door life and "roughing it," for a big tent, cots and bedding will be provided for the use of those who prefer tenting to hotel life, a truck being provided to transfer the tent from one point to another. In addition a "circular" will be carried with the party, but to gain admission to the circus a man must be accompanied by his wife, best girl or some other fellow's girl. One of the trucks will also be provided with chairs and a small speaking platform, so as to make sure that there will be accommodations for the speakers at each stopping point.

Among the attractions enroute will be swimming in the Bay and a dance at Tawas beach; a farmer's picnic at Lincoln, a big dance at Topinabee and a barbecue at either Gladwin or Beaverton.

These trips in former years have done a great missionary work in opening the eyes of the tourists to the rapid development of this section of the state and at the same time they have helped, not only to spread the gospel of good roads in the territory covered, but they have helped to awaken the state highway department to the fact that many of the communities are deserving of more state aid than they have received in the past.

FLAG DAY IS JUNE 14.
ALBERT E. SLEEPER, Governor of the State of Michigan issued a Proclamation, and urgently requested that Saturday, the fourteenth day of June, 1919, be observed as Flag Day. Let flags be displayed on both public and private buildings; and, as Flag Day will fall on Saturday when the schools will be closed, I suggest that on Sunday, June 15th, fitting Flag Day programs be given in all the churches of the State.

Let us honor the flag.

John S. Harrington, long a resident of Grayling passed away at his home here Friday afternoon at two o'clock having been ill only a week. The cause of death was diphtheria, but there were no symptoms of this disease, until just 24 hours before the old gentleman's death. Stanley's Water Lily

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"And down that lane you get to the bungalow of Tom Stanley, the water lily man—water lilies, pond lilies or whatever you call them. He calls them nymphaeae, if that is the way you pronounce the botanical name." This was part of the information that Mrs. Bob Manning gave her house guest, Fay McLeod, on the first of her week ends at the Manning country cottage. "So, you see, we haven't very many eligible bachelors for you, Fay," she went on, "though, truly, I imagine that Mr. Stanley is nice enough aside from the pond lilies. He's a professor at one of the colleges in the winter, though his property would make him independent if he chose. At least, he's harmless and quite good looking and you can see how you like him. We've asked him up for the little dance to-night."

Perhaps the fact that Fay was getting all her vacation in those week ends at the summer place of her old friend, Mrs. Manning, that summer, and that what diversions she had from the grind of directing a playground in one of the crowded city neighborhoods had to be derived from Saturday noon to Monday morning, accounted for the fact that she showed less than her usual reserve when she met Mr. Tom Stanley and the other guests at the Bob Mannings' Saturday night dance.

"It must be a fascinating study," she told Tom, as she brought up the subject of his hobby that her hostess had told her about. "There are some that bloom only at night, aren't there?" Tom uttered an affirmative, but without digression on the subject of nymphaeae, for at that particular moment the delicate curve of Fay McLeod's lips and the delicate rounding of her chin seemed of vastly more interest than all the night-blooming water lilies in the world. He had an absurd desire to tell her about it.

"I have always longed to see a lotus," went on Fay, heroically trying to continue the conversation. Usually when all other devices failed one could talk on a man's hobby with results, but this time the rule was failing. "There must be something inexpressibly lovely about them. Yet, I suppose they never grow in this climate?"

"So you are interested in them, too," said Tom Stanley, recalling himself. "Most people find them rather stupid. Really, I do wish you could get up an interest in the subject, because if you did then perhaps you wouldn't find me so dull as I am afraid you would other wise. What a jolly thing it would be if I could make myself a really interesting friend to—a girl like you."

"I really do wish some nice girl could take that Mr. Tom Stanley in hand and marry him," sighed Mrs. Bob Manning over Sunday morning breakfast with her husband and Fay. She had told her husband her plans beforehand and had coached him on what he should say.

"He really is a fine chap," he explained. But he had been much absorbed in his shoving when his wife had coached him, and he had forgotten the details of the instruction. "Say Fay," he said, "why don't you marry him? He seemed immensely taken with you when he asked me when you were coming again and all about you. You might as well be spending his money as having him squander it all on those infernal water weeds of his. He spends all his stray time moping through the marshes looking for them, and not content with what he gets that way he spends thousands of dollars having roots imported from Egypt and other God-forsaken places. Why what he spends on those weeds would support half a dozen wives."

The days that followed were gloomy ones for Tom Stanley. He was pessimistic from the first about Fay. He knew well enough that she was the girl whom he would want to marry, but he felt no security at all in his method of courtship.

Now, if it was a new sort of water nymph that he was in search of that would have been different. That was a matter of patient search through the marshes communication with his agent and then careful cultivation on his own part. But wooing a wife was something that he felt he knew nothing about.

It was after they had known each other for three week ends that Stanley decided he could endure the suspense no longer. He determined to ask her that week end to be his wife. Stanley met Fay at the small station where those who visit that section of the country must get off and run her over to his roadster to the Bob Mannings' house.

The mysterious pyramids and the still more mysterious and awe-inspiring sphinx have reared their towering and massive outlines above the shifting sands of Egypt for more than 3,000 years. Damasus is older than they are. Compared to Damasus the great wall of China is a work of modern construction, and this also applies to the cities of northern and western Europe, while the oldest cities of the western hemisphere are as saplings compared to an old oak."

Didn't want to Wait. Mr. Purvess-Smith was furnishing his library, which occupation was causing him considerable anxiety. In despair he called in an expert book-seller, and after many suggestions and a final order for a complete library he turned to his adviser and asked: "And what is the name of that fellow who writes such a lot—Shakespeare, or something like that, isn't it?"

Brass Best Alloy. Brass is perhaps the best-known and most useful alloy. It is formed by fusing together copper and zinc. Different proportions of these metals produce bronzes possessing very marked distinctive properties. The portions of the different ingredients are seldom precisely alike; these depend upon the requirements of various uses for which the alloys are intended. Peculiar qualities of the constituent metals also exercise influence on the results.

Concealing a smile, the bookseller suggested: "And may I suggest you have them bound in Morocco?" "Bound in Morocco!" roared the newly made Croesus. "No, certainly not. I want the confounded things at once."

Held In Trust

By IZOLA FORRESTER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Barbara leaned forward as the car turned off Nassau street into Liberty. How narrow it was down here, and how like canyons, with the great dull gray walls towering so closely together on each side of her. She wondered how on earth Truesdale could spend half his life in such a place.

Yet in a way he was like it, determined and silent. Even before her father died, when she was only twelve, she remembered him as a young man who rarely smiled. Her aunt had always said he was so reliable and steady—qualities which had never recommended him to Barbara's favor. She went up in the elevator now with a feeling of relief that she was twenty-one and his guardianship was ended at last.

Allan was alone in his inner office waiting for her, the clerk said. She glanced around it curiously as she sank down in the leather armchair he drew forward. It was tall and narrow and somber like the street outside. Only a flat-topped desk seemed to show any human interest. In a copper urn was a bunch of arbutus, and a little squat silver figure of a Chinese mandarin perpetually made obeisance on an inkstand.

"I've been planning to do so many things that I never dared even to mention before," she told him happily. "I want to go somewhere and build myself a wonderful mountain bungalow and have horses and a sort of play ranch. And then I want to give Aunt Cecilia a solid annuity so she won't feel as if her whole life was to be spent keeping one eye on me. And I'd like to just sell out the whole business so I won't have to look after anything at all, and I thought I'd love to found an orphanage or something like that."

Allan listened attentively, but with no smile on his close lips. He was marking star shapes on his blotter and watching the clock above her head now and then. It was nearly four. He wondered if he would have time to tell her before Yates arrived.

"When Mr. Curtis died his affairs were in a very tangled state," he said. "He always suspected lawyers and his death came so suddenly there was no chance for him to attend to anything or to explain anything."

"What was there to explain?" asked Barbara, with a touch of her father's quick pride. "Much," answered Allan tersely. "He had been persuaded to tie up his money in a lot of unsafe speculation, and had borrowed heavily to cover his own outstanding liabilities. These obligations to banks and friends had to be paid out of the estate. A few of us who had been close to him carried ours under interest."

"Did father even owe you money?" "Some. I was very glad to help him."

He turned his attention to a mass of papers at his elbow, sorting and arranging them for her perusal, while Barbara was undergoing a mental readjustment. It had never occurred to her that Tom Curtis, her father, could possibly be under obligations to any one. He had seemed to rule that end of the state politically, and there had been his railroad, and—oh, it was absurd to talk so. She looked at Allan aggressively.

"I don't see how it could be true," "You will find everything here," he told her a bit wearily. "There is nothing for you to worry over, Barbara. You may not be able to found your orphanage, but you could still have a bungalow. Another thing I should tell you before we part as ward and guardian. Paulton Yates has told me you are engaged to be married."

Barbara did not look at him this time. Only from his voice she could tell that he did not care one single bit. He went on talking to her in the same impersonal, aloof way he had always used ever since he had found her on the veranda with Paulton. And it had been so perfectly silly to imagine she cared for him seriously. He always took things for granted. There came a call for him in the outer office and he left her alone just as Yates arrived. Allan told him he would find Barbara within. But it was a different Barbara who faced him from the girl he had danced with, ridden with, flirted with for the past year.

She was not engaged to him at all, she told him indignantly. He had had no right to tell her guardian that she was. And Paulton, stung by her tone and manner, laughed at her faith in Truesdale.

"Everybody knows he's played fast and loose with your money, Bab. What have you got left now? I've always cared for you, you know that, and it doesn't matter about money with me, I always took things for granted. There came a call for him in the outer office and he left her alone just as Yates arrived. Allan told him he would find Barbara within. But it was a different Barbara who faced him from the girl he had danced with, ridden with, flirted with for the past year."

TAKES NOTHING FOR GRANTED Successful Inventor Studies Over and Improves Upon the Ideas Evolved by Others.

The editor of the Scientific American recently interviewed an inventor who for some years past has produced an average of one new device a week. The man's ideas are not limited to any one field, for his inventions include a propeller of new design, a dustless ash sifter, a novel game, and hundreds of other different devices. His theory is that inventions are generally by due either to accident or to careful study. Many of the leading inventions can be traced to a chance remark, an accident or a peculiar incident; indeed, there is a wealth of romance in the history of inventions. But the greatest mental stimulus of all is refusing to admit that the given thing is perfect. No matter how good it is, no matter how apparent its perfection seems, or how long it may have existed in its present shape—it can and it must be improved. That makes for progress. The Scientific American tells of another inventor who refused to consider the violin as a perfected instrument, despite the fact that it has not changed its form in the last 800 years or more. Not long ago he brought out a new type of violin that met with instant success. Another man believed that shoes are far from perfect. Why should they not be ventilated? Physicians say that lack of air accounts for most foot troubles. Why not let the feet breathe? The man went to work and finally perfected a simple shoe ventilator. The true inventor takes nothing for granted. Perfection, to his way of thinking, is only a comparative term. His job is to make "perfect" things still more perfect. Youth's Companion.

Here's a Cheery Chap. The man who has his enemies amounts to something. He is a live man. He is a fighter. People don't kick a corpse. A live man can swim against the current; a corpse floats down without hindrance. God bless our enemies! We love them. They are making life worth while.—Boston Transcript.

Origin of Buttons. The Elizabethan era gave vogue to the button and buttonhole, two inventions which may be regarded as important, since they did much to revolutionize dress. The original button was wholly a product of needlework, which was soon improved by use of a wooden mold. The brass button is said to have been introduced by a Birmingham merchant in 1683. It took 200 years to improve on the method of sewing the cloth upon the covered button. Then an ingenious Dane hit upon the idea of making the button in two parts and clamping them together with the cloth between.

The most important branch of the button industry in the United States is the making of pearl buttons, the material for which is obtained from shells gathered along the Mississippi river. The industry has grown up within the last twenty years.

Fifteenth Chief Magistrate. On the 23rd of April in 1701, James Buchanan, fifteenth president of the United States, was born at Stony Batter, Pa. Buchanan was nominated by the Democratic party in 1856. He won and was inaugurated on March 4, 1857. His administration, which came directly before the outbreak of the Civil war, was generally thought to be overlenient toward the activities of the southern leaders. On February 4, during the last month of Buchanan's term in 1861, the Confederate States of America, formed of the states which had seceded from the Union, was organized at Montgomery, Ala. Buchanan died at the age of 77 at Wheatland, Pa., in 1868.

All Have Right to Success. Every normal individual is an inheritor of success; it is his birthright. When one fails to grasp his full portion he is going contrary to nature's laws, just as sure as does the man who ruins his prospects by liquor or opium or evil associates. Nearly every human being is born into the world a success, and he continues to be a success until he, knowingly or unknowingly, opposes the general laws of the world. Such evasions as "lack of time," "no money," "no opportunity," are shameful, they are unnatural, they are untrue, and they increase the population in the community of failures.—Exchange.

SILK AN INDUSTRY OF INDIA

One Million People in the Great Eastern Country Engaged in Its Production.

There are 1,000,000 people in India engaged in the production of silk. Caterpillars and moths of the mulberry silk industry of India are entirely domesticated creatures. The Indians collect the cocoons spun by caterpillars and allow them to hatch, an exchange states. The females are kept until they lay eggs and when the caterpillars are large enough they are placed on trees to feed. When a tree is stripped a piece of cloth is hung from a limb and the caterpillars crawl onto it and are moved to another tree.

Tassar or tussor silk comes from China and Japan. Muga silk is a product of Assam. Eri silk comes from caterpillars which feed on the castor oil plant. It is of great value in India, because it is the only silk that can be spun from cocoons without killing the insects in the cocoons and is therefore the only silk that can be worn by a strict Hindu.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

GRAYLING, THURSDAY, JUNE 12

THIS IS BOY
SCOUT WEEKWHY THE CHURCHES SHOULD SUPPORT THE BOY SCOUTS.

By James E. West.
 (Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America.)
 "The War is Over But Our Work is Not!"

This is the cry of the Boy Scouts of America, the cry of a Movement that now comprises almost 400,000 American boys and a hundred thousand leaders of a mighty army of organized boyhood that amazed the country by performing the herculean task of selling $300,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, $50,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps, locating 20,000,000 feet of walnut lumber for the War Department, collecting enough fruit pits to furnish the necessary chemicals for half a million gas masks, distributing 30,000,000 pieces of government literature and serving as boyhood has never been known to serve in various capacities for the Y. M. C. A., the American Red Cross, the Knights of Columbus, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Salvation Army, the American Library Association and hundreds of other worthy agencies during the war.

Such a cry cannot pass unnoticed! And especially so in the light of the achievements enumerated, for surely when boys, "mere youngsters," can weld themselves as solidly into the history of our great triumph as the Scouts of America have done, their far-seeing challenge to be of service during the days to come cannot pass unheeded!

It shall not!
 Such is the determination of the big men of the country, who, under the leadership of the Hon. W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, have banded themselves into a National Citizens' Committee to secure 1,000,000 associate members of the Boy Scouts of America, in keeping with Proclamation issued by the President of the United States, calling upon the people to observe the period beginning June 8th and continuing to June 14th as Boy Scout week.

This week is to be far more than a "drive." It is to be a seven-day demonstration of gratitude in appreciation of what the scouts did during the war; it will be dedicated to the 10,000,000 boys of scout age to whom the benefits of Scouting should be extended; it will aim to arouse the people to the necessity of training the youth of today for the responsibilities of citizenship tomorrow.

And behind it will be every race and creed, every agency of service the country can muster—every school every club, every church.

The churches particularly will lend their support to the movement, for, first of all eighty per cent of the vast number of scout troops are connected with churches. As the Rev. Franklin D. Elmer of the Northern Baptists Convention has said, "Scouting binds the boy to his church and affords mutually helpful opportunities for the church to serve him and for him to serve in his place. The troop of today may be built into the church of tomorrow."

The religious policy of the Scout Movement is consistent with the best of ecclesiastical principles. In all matters of faith the boy is directly under the guidance of his parent church. No religious teaching is thrust upon him from the outside. No attempt is made to wean him away from his proper religious environment. Scouting turns the boy toward his church at home instead of drawing him out of it!

It is endorsed by every faith and creed. It is approved and generously supported by Catholic, Protestant and Jew alike. It is thoroughly American, thoroughly religious. It teaches boys to live—to live as God intended they should.

The philosophy of "don'tism" has no place in the creed of scouting. It is a movement of expression, not repression; expression through constructive imagination in the woods, under blue skies, on long, winding roads, out where nature is most beautiful, where the soul works as in the Temples of God, most purely.

One million associate members are to be recruited during Boy Scout week. They are to come from the big cities and remote country hamlets alike, from every place where people congregate, largely from the most holy of such places—the church.

The need of such a membership, such financial auxiliary is imperative for, as great as this movement is, it is as yet embraces but one-twenty-fifth of the eligible boyhood of the nation.

The boys can be secured by millions. They want Scouting. They plead for it! Their applications for scout membership pour into National headquarters at the rate of a thousand a day!

But troops cannot be formed without red-blooded God-fearing men to serve as scoutmasters and assistants. This leadership cannot be obtained without the necessary funds for supervision, for extension.

Free Methodists Organize and Buy
 The Free Methodists have organized a society here in Grayling and have bought the church on State street. The society was organized by Rev. J. W. Archer, district elder of the Grand Rapids district. The work will be supplied by Rev. Daniel Skanes of the Kingsley circuit the remainder of this conference year.

Services will be held weekly and announcements will be made later. They expect to repair the church in the near future.

Have you ordered your fuel for next winter? We are ready to take your order. City Coal Yard, Phone 718.

IS THIS YOUR EXPERIENCE?
 Many Grayling People Are Afflicted With Annoying Kidney Ills.

Are you bothered with too frequent actions of the kidneys? Are the secretions highly colored—do they contain sediment—burn and scald in voiding? These are all signs of kidney sickness and should not be neglected. Grayling people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches and your kidneys are weak you will find no better recommended remedy.

Peter Wm. Christensen, Chestnut St., Grayling, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times in the past, getting them at Lewis' Drug Store and they have always proved of great benefit to me. When my back has been weak or lame and the kidney secretions have been too frequent in passage, I have used Doan's Kidney Pills. They have always fixed me up in good shape."

Price 60¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Christensen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

Cut This Out and Take It With You.
 A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

KINDERGARTEN
HELPS FOR PARENTS

NOTE.—Prepared for the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education, by the National Kindergarten association.

A TRUE BIRD STORY.

(By Olive Thorne Miller, Author of "The Children's Book of Birds," and M. M. M.)

The young bird has to learn how to do things just as small boys and girls do, although not in exactly the same way.

One of the first lessons he learns is how to fly. He really knows how to do this, but needs practice until his wings grow strong enough to carry him through the air. Many young birds begin this practice before they leave the nest. I have often seen a nestling beating and beating his wings without stirring an inch from his tiny home.

You have heard perhaps that the father and mother birds push their babies out of the nest. Do not believe any such thing because it is not true. I have seen many young birds leave the nest of their own accord, but never one pushed out. Sometimes the mother may coax her children, but often they fly out while the parents are away finding food.

After the young bird leaves the nest his father and mother follow and feed him for he does not know how to feed himself. This is the next lesson he has to learn. He must also know where to sleep, and how to protect himself from all the other creatures that want to catch him and eat him. Then he must be able to sing, and no doubt there are many other lessons for him to learn that we do not know about.

Once I had a good chance to watch two young blue jays learn to get their own living. After they left the nest they lived in a little grove, where I could easily find them when I went to watch. They seemed to be always hungry, and every few minutes one of the parents would hurry up with a grasshopper or some other insect to stuff into the wide-open mouths. These little wild cherries grew on a big tree in the grove.

One day after giving the twins choke-cherries, the parents slipped quietly out of sight, and stayed away a long time. I could see them perching near but the young birds could not. The father and mother were not hunting food as usual but seemed to be taking a rest. I wondered at this, for I had never seen them resting since the little ones were hatched.

The twins, who were quite as large as their parents now, did not try to pull any of the fruit from the trees, although it grew all about, and they had often seen it done. They sat idly picking at their toes, stretching their beautiful wings, or hopping from branch to branch.

Soon it was evident that they were hungry for they began to call. Nothing happened. They called again. Still no food. This must have been a great surprise, for usually their cries brought a parent with food at once. Hungrier and hungrier they grew, and louder and louder they called, but still no parents.

All this time I could see the mother and father birds sitting near, and I also began to wonder why they did not bring something.

At last the mother flew to the children, but with nothing in her beak. Squawking madly, the two hungry youngsters flung themselves upon her. They almost knocked her off the perch. She just hopped out of the way and did not seem to care that they were hungry. Again the twins flew at her, begging for food, and she calmly hopped out of the way. Then she hopped up to a bunch of cherries and pulled one. The children crowded close, and what do you think that bird did? She deliberately swallowed that cherry herself!

The twins seemed dumfounded. For a minute they did not make a sound nor move a muscle. Then screaming louder than ever they began jerking at the choke-cherries for themselves. At first they were so clumsy they dropped every one, but soon they managed to swallow a few.

Those two young blue jays had learned the great lesson of their lives. Help to reach all the parents of the country by cutting this out and passing it on to a friend.

The Failing family left their home in Gibbstown Saturday morning and drove to Buffalo, there taking the boat to Detroit, and then making the trip from Detroit to Grayling by auto, arriving here at midnight Monday. They will visit here for a few days and during their stay here Mr. Failing expects to make a trip to Barksdale, Wis., to look over the duPont plant in that city. Mr. Failing is employed by the duPonts at Gibbstown, and was allowed a longer vacation if while in the north here he would go to Wisconsin to look over the plant. Before returning to their home in the east they will also visit relatives at Tekonsha. Miss Wilda Failing expects to make the return trip with her brother and family to their home.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotics, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power are a result of dosing with opiates to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ill affecting people today can be traced back to the kidneys.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haaslin Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haaslin Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning. After you feel somewhat improved, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep the first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

Cunning at a Fox.

While sitting on the bank of a small stream, writes a Companion subscriber, a friend and I heard some hounds baying on the opposite side of the creek. We were guessing what they might be chasing, when all at once we saw a two-thirds-grown rabbit come from the weeds and slowly walk into the water until it got so deep that he was compelled to swim. We thought that the little animal was coming across; but suddenly he turned upstream and swam for some two or three rods, and then he climbed out on the bank and disappeared in the weeds and underbrush.

A few moments later the hounds came to the water and lost the trail. If that were not a piece of cunning on the part of Bunny, I am much mistaken.—Youth's Companion.

The Mayor—Oh, you noble-hearted philanthropist! Why do you really mean to—Europe Must Import Wheat to Live.

Paris.—A preliminary survey of the import necessities of Europe, except Russia, shows that the area will need 700,000,000 bushels of wheat and rye at a minimum with 800,000,000 bushels as a possible maximum, according to Herbert C. Hoover, chief of the allied relief organization. The export surplus from the larger exporting countries indicate that the needs of Europe can be met. Mr. Hoover estimates the exports of the United States at 47,000,000 bushels.

COCA-COLA WILL BE USED TO CHRISTEN ENGINE

Program Will Feature Exercises at Fire Hall on Wednesday.

(From Nashville Tennessean.)
 Ann Dallas Dudley, the new fire engine at the Waverly-Belmont fire hall, will be christened on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with appropriate exercises. Mrs. Gullford Dudley, for whom the engine gets its name, is one of the state's pioneer suffrage workers and it is due to her untiring work that partial suffrage was given the women of Tennessee. Mrs. Miles Williams, a resident of the twenty-first ward, is chairman of arrangements, and also a pioneer suffragist, and little Judith Winston Folk, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Renu Folk, also a pioneer suffragist and the youngest member of the Nashville organization, has been chosen sponsor. Miss Folk has selected as her maids the following young girls, daughters of prominent suffrage leaders: Travania Dudley, Lenore Kenny, Kate Barksdale, Harriet Ingram, Mary Sue Cantrell, Jane Davis and Elizabeth Smith.

At the christening, not champagne but a bottle of coca-cola will be broken and the maids will shower the engine with yellow flowers. Speeches will be made by Mayor William Gupion, Commissioner Tompkins and Chief A. A. Rosetta. Mrs. Dudley, a member of the national suffrage organization, and Mrs. Renu Folk, chairman of the city organization, will be honor guests of the occasion.—Adv.

When questioned he insisted that he was the body servant of an Austrian officer, who, intending to desert, had sent the man ahead with his personal belongings.

Sure enough, a few minutes later the master appeared!—Youth's Companion.

CRAWFORD COUNTY AGENTS COLUMN

In some places at least throughout these counties the grasshoppers are hatched out by the million. They are very small yet, some not being as large as a mosquito. However a close inspection of the grass, especially the blue grass will show them into this matter around their own premises and along the roadsides, as it means much money to the farmers whether they get after this fellow properly or not.

The Department of Animal Husbandry has furnished the County Agent with sunflower seed for two acre demonstrations of sunflower silage. These acres have been placed with Henry Traubenkraut at Geels on the Ward Ranch, and the other with Clayton Emigh south of Roscommon on the Michigan Pipe Co. Ranch. Observations will be had and records made of the success of these demonstrations.

Andrew Mortenson of Wellington Community is putting on a demonstration with Robust Beans, also with Wis. No. 25 corn, and Northwestern Smoky dent. In the same Community Homer G. Benedict is putting on demonstrations with Robust beans, and Northwestern Smoky Dent corn.

The Executive Committee of the Crawford County farm bureau have decided to hold regular monthly meetings on the last Saturday of each month, at the Court House at Grayling, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They can see much business of importance to the agricultural interests of that county looming up in the near future.

Arrangements for the joint Farm Bureau picnic to be held at the Hanson Military Reservation on July 18th are coming nicely. A meeting of the representatives of the Grayling Board of Trade, the Farm Bureau and the County Agents will be held in Grayling on June 16th for the purpose of definitely fixing the program for the day, after which the same will be given due publicity. This day is going to afford an opportunity for recreation and education that never has been presented to the farming communities of these counties before. During the day many specialists along different lines will be present. The County Agents from 19 counties and officers from the Farm Bureau of these counties will be where they can talk over their business matters together and get better acquainted.

Usually what we do is governed a great deal by what the other fellow is doing and thinking along the same lines. This will be the time for finding these things out. President Smith of the Farm Bureau of Monticommunity speaking to the Executive Committee of Crawford County farm bureau suggested that inasmuch as several of these northern counties had such a different condition relative to development, finance, strength of community, sparsity of population, etc., than those older counties of the southern part of the state that it would be the very best thing that officers of the Bureau and other farmers interested get together and talk over and plan more concerted action along the lines of solving their peculiar difficulties and problems and suggested that the picnic would afford an ideal place for such interchange of ideas.

Let the farmers set this day aside for their day; a day in which they will not only relax and recreate but that they will absorb information that will work for their future welfare.

One small demonstration well carried out and successful will do more toward changing the entire agricultural practice of a given community in that particular line than all the lectures and talks that extension specialists, County agents etc., could do in years, but it usually is necessary to have a certain amount of talk on the part of these gentry before the demonstration can be procured.

The soils demonstration being carried on by the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau on the State Farm at Grayling, under the direction of the department of soils M. A. C. promises to be very instructive. When the demonstrations were carried on in 1928 by the Michigan Agricultural College little if nothing was known about bacteriology especially as applying to agriculture. Much has been learned along this line since that time and it has been demonstrated that there are ways of achieving results today unthought of then.

However the same danger is present as at that time in the way of false publicity. The land that is being used for the demonstration is not representative of the great body of cut over pine lands in Northern Michigan but is infinitely poorer in quality. Should the demonstration be successful it means a great deal because it will demonstrate that there are no Worthless Lands in Northern Michigan. If it is not successful it will demonstrate that there is a small percentage of lands of this nature, and they do not constitute 5% of all the lands, that it does not pay to expend money and effort on at the present time.

The reports on file at the College rendered by those in charge of the project in 1928 are undoubtedly correct and to the point as relating to this particular piece of land and as to the class of lands which this piece of land really represents, but of land really represents those who evidently from the waiting thought that this made them honestly thought that this whole section of that class of "Jack Pine composed of that class of "Jack Pine Plains barrens" as they designated them in the report. Happily these erroneous ideas as to the extent of prevalence of this particular type of land in this part of Michigan has been dispelled and the failure of a demonstration more or less upon them should cut no figure with people's ideas of the value of the great bulk of the pine lands that at one time raised the heaviest crops in history.

Our lands are so varied in this section that it is almost impossible to own a very large holding of land without having at least a small amount of this kind of land. So every farmer should watch with sympathetic interest these demonstrations. He should become conversant with what they are trying to do, and the methods pursued, because whether or they succeed or fail they can either save many men money from trying something foredoomed to failure, or in pointing out something that will be successful from the start.

The Soils demonstrations being carried on by the Board of Supts. of Poor on the County Farm at Roscommon, under the direction of the County Agent are coming on nicely so far there being a keen rivalry between the Sweet clover and Quack grass for mastery. The Mammoth clover is not doing as well so far as the sweet. The alfalfa seeding is looking well at the present time. All of these seedings were made prior to the big windstorm that lasted three days and it looked as though the seed would be blown several miles up the Au Sable River. The demonstration with Buckwheat, and Rape are being put in at the present time. These demonstrations are being carried on in such a manner as to be within reach of almost an ordinary farmer from a standpoint of expense, and the farmers are invited to look them over when it is convenient.
